GARRULOUS, EH?

Two Englishmen of the old conservative country family type sat next to each other every day on the boat deck of an Atlantic liner without exchanging a single word.

At 11 that morning the day before they were to land, just after the beef tea had been served, a gust of wind blew the cap off the head of one of the passengers. The chair of his fellow traveler stopped it from going overboard.

"The latter picked up the cap and handed it to the owner, who said, 'Thank you,' and then, as he adjusted his headcovering carefully, added: 'Are you crossing?'"

"Yes, are you?"

"Yes," replied the first traveler gravely, and the incident closed.
